

1-800-I'm-Suing-You

(1 Corinthians 6:1-11)

It happened on a bright sunny Lord's Day,
Two Christian brothers coming to worship in opposite ways.

The church parking lot was full and difficult to see,
A place to park, just one slot that was free.

When at the same time both men then spy,
The single space if they hurry they'll try.

They arrive at the same time, neither giving in,
Then crash and crumple, both fenders dented in.

Now anger erupts and tempers do flare,
Name calling, swearing and ill will fill the air.

All lawyered up to civil court they both go,
Suing each other for repairs they both owe.

But now word has gotten out about two brothers who sue,
All thought Christians loved each other, but of this who knew?

Now the church's reputation is known for this feud,
Can relations that are severed ever be renewed?

Forgiveness is needed instead of compensation,
So we must love one another and in the end reap salvation!
